PERSONALITY

You are very pragmatic, independent and proud. You think that Dwarves are the highest form of life. They should not bow down to other rulers. You even doubt the existence of Aslan

HISTORY

You are prepared to deal with anyone and anything as long as they do so on your terms.

One of the reasons you feel that you can deal successfully with the White Witch is that you know a number of her secrets. She she has used Dwarvish slave since Narnia began, and of course these slaves know where their true loyalties lie. Over the years your ancestors have built up quite a file of knowledge about her. You know that a major part of her magical power comes from her wand. The wand halves the magical cost of every spell she casts. It was made by dwarves from a branch of a magical, solid gold tree. She killed all of the Dwarves involved in its manufacture after it was finished, but not before one of them had passed this information on to his son and so on down the generations until it came to

you. There is an inscription on the wand. Only a person with the ability to cast spells can see it. The wand will work for anyone who recites the inscription. Unfortunately, the inscription is in High Narnian a language no one speaks anymore.

You know how to make a thaw because it is one of the things written on the stone table. Your grandfather, when he was alive, could read High Narnian, you cannot remember all the things he told you but that one point that stuck in your mind. You know that Coriakin has some of the seeds. You snoop. Especially when someone smelling of magic comes to Narnia from the East. Aslan was supposed to come from the east. You have to be careful that you are not going to just swap rulers.
